Australian Country of Origin Labelling

On 1st July 2016, the new Country of Origin Food Labelling Information Standard came into effect under Australian Consumer Law (ACL).

Australian Origin Claims: The "Mark"

Scope

This law requires all Priority Foods to carry the "The Mark" on or near them in relation to Country of Origin. For example a price ticket.
Some examples of Priority foods include Fruit and Vege, Meat, Deli Lines, Cheeses, Chicken, Fish and/or products made from these.

Information and documents defining exactly how, when and where the "Mark" should be used can be found on the following government web sites:

Phototicket can easily generate all necessary variations of "The Mark".

Transition Period

A two year transition period has been provided, ending on 30 June 2018.

For the remainder of the transition period, products can be labelled either according to the new rules, or the rules currently in the Food Standards Code.

From 1 July 2018, all products must be labelled in accordance with the new Information Standard.

The scope of food products covered by mandatory country of origin labelling requirements under the Food Standards Code is retained in the Information Standard.

Non-compliance with the Standard and the ACL

Businesses must still ensure that any country of origin representation made is not false, misleading or deceptive.

Non-compliance is likely to contravene the ACL (Australian Consumer Law)

The ACCC will be actively monitoring compliance.

Maximum financial penalty for a breach of the ACL is $1.1 million for a corporate body and $220,000 for a person.

Self adhesive labels.

Need to create shelf adhesive labels for in-store packaged products?

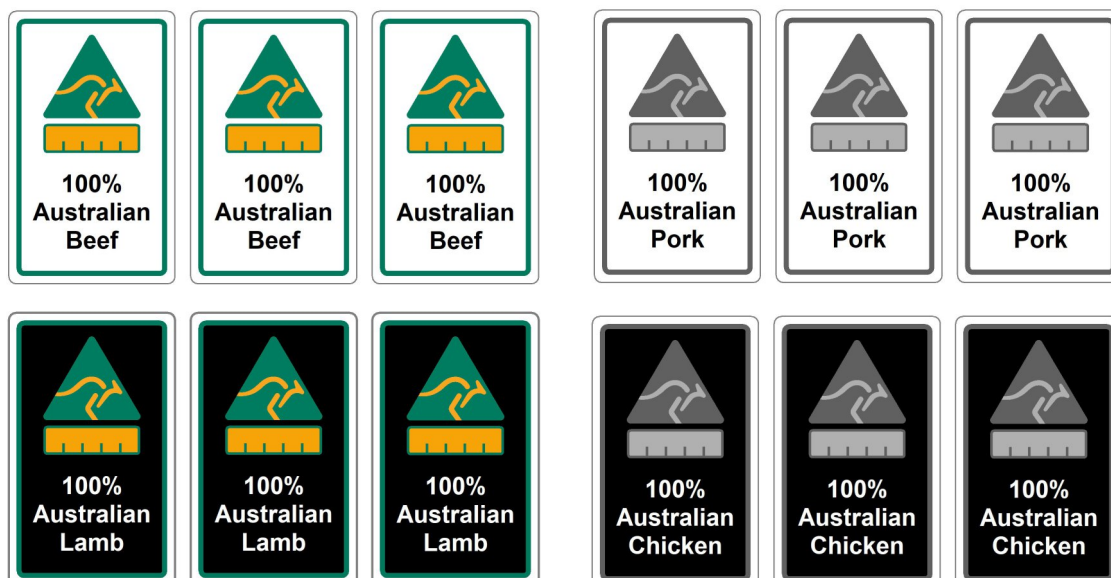

Phototicket's new 'drag n drop' design feature makes designing your own labels easy.

You can also change the orientation, reverse out the background or convert to monotone with just the click of a button.

Don't have the time, then let us create your templates for you.
